Randy Singer is the Associate Dean for two departments within the School of Business at British Columbia Institute of Technology (BCIT), Digital Arts, and Broadcast and Media Communications. He leads a team of approximately one-hundred (100) full time and sessional instructors and support staff delivering nine (9) full time programs and eighteen (18) part-time studies (continuing education) programs, to approximately one-thousand (1000) students.

Randy was appointed to his current position in January 2012, after nearly three (3) years as Acting Associate Dean, seven (7) years as Part-time Studies Coordinator, and seven (7) years as an Instructor in the Marketing Management department, also in the School of Business at BCIT.

Before a career change into post-secondary education in the mid-1990's, Randy co-owned and managed a food processing and marketing firm, and worked several years in Radio and Television Broadcasting in Ontario, Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

Randy completed the foundation Leadership Academy in 2011, and holds an M.B.A. from Athabasca University, the BC Provincial Instructor Diploma, and a Diploma in Broadcasting—Radio and Television Arts from Conestoga College.
